Kickham's Rink To Cost $30,000

PLANS PERFECTED FOR PALATIAL PLEASURE BUILDING AT MISSION BEACH

Edward A. Kickham, a widely and favorably known amusement promoter with a wealth of expert knowledge about roller skating rinks, has secured the first concession in the new amusement center at Mission Beach and is having the proper plans prepared for the construction of an immense modern roller-skating rink. He has leased a choice location at the northwest corner of the intersection of Mission boulevard and the amusement center prado extending from ocean to bay, It is immediately east of the $450,000 bathhouse now being erected by the Mission Beach company with the expectation of being opened next February.

Costly Structure

The great Kickham roller rink will be 150 feet in depth with a frontage of 90 feet on the prado. It will be of the Spanish style of architecture with towers at the corners, and the cost is estimated at $30,000, exclusive of equipment. The walls will be of brick and tile finished with stucco and the roof of tile and glass with ventilators.

America's Finest Rink

Mr. Kickham is an old-timer in the roller skating business, and believes that the rink he is planning will be the finest in this country, altogether in keeping with the class of improvements that the Mission Beach company itself is building and is specifying from concessionaries. He states that the floor area of 80x140 feet will be of the finest and hardest grade of maple, while the skate equipment will be of fibre rollers entirely.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATION ON THE CONSTITUTION

The county Board of Education has decided to hold two examinations for teachers, one in December and one in January, on the "Principles and Provisions of the United States Constitution." These examinations will be held on the same dates as the general examination for teachers applying for elementary certificates. The passing grade will be 75 per cent.

GAS AND BABIES

Gas, a household necessity today, is about as little understood by the average person as electricity.

Gas making equipment requires almost as much skilled attention and care as a baby. A change in the kind of coal or oil, in the temperature of the water, in atmospheric conditions—or in any one of innumerable things may alter heat value or quantity of gas.

The gas man is continually sampling, weighing and measuring. He is constantly watching to see that the product being served the housewife is up to standard. In large gas plants at least seventy-two heat value readings of the gas are made every twenty-four hours every day in the year.

PLAYING POLITICS

It seems like whenever anybody wants to put something over in politics today he tells the farmer he needs a change.

Twenty years ago the supposedly popular method to get votes was to "bust" a trust. Now that they have all the trusts "busted," a lot of agitators would like to "bust" the farmer, providing they could do it before he found it out.

New Trains and Boats For Your Children

EVERYTHING IN TOYS UPSTAIRS AND DOWNSTAIRS AT PASSMORE'S STORE

One may travel far and yon and yet never have the privilege of witnessing such a wonderful display of children's playthings as can be seen in the great show windows and on the shelves and counters within Passmore's Bird and Toy store, at Sixth and B street. For most enjoyably entrancing effect and general attractiveness, the famous Passmore store, under the efficient guidance of the able Alex. Noland and his clever son, stands supreme and is without a peer on the entire Pacific Coast. And this is no super-flattering statement. It is an undeniable fact that Passmore's is a perennial paradise of pretty playthings.

Just now there is a very generous and complete display of the well known line of Ives' toys, with a big selection of electric trains and a fleet of power boats and submarines, all bearing the reliable Ives' stamp. And what's more, Manager Noland assures his patrons that they get the full benefit of the eastern price list, which is often considerably lower than the regular western rates.

The new 1925 line of juvenile autos have been received, as well as the Lloyd doll buggies, Columbia tricycles and scooters. Upstairs and downstairs, the Passmore showrooms are filled with everything in the line of toys and visitors are always welcome.

It will do your EYES good to see CASTIEN, Rooms 16-17, Sefton Bldg., Fifth and C. Phone 644-27.

FLEET RETURNS TO SAN DIEGO BASE FROM THE NORTH

The fleet is back and will remain very likely over the holidays. San Diego's great destroyer force returned on scheduled time last Wednesday from maneuvers in northern waters and several extra warships are due next week for basing here. Admiral Schofield has announced several changes in division and ship commanders.

Tomorrow, Saturday, October 4, is the last day of registration for the November election.

THE FIRST REGATTA

In view of the recent celebration on San Diego Bay, under the auspices of the San Diego Yacht Club, which received considerable notice because of its being the first of many such celebrations hereafter to be held here, when racing yachts and speed boats shall assemble and enliven these waters as the early builders of San Diego, Ocean Beach and Roseville dreamed they might be enlivened, it will be interesting perhaps to recall the very first regatta. An editorial in the San Diego Herald of March 20, 1852—more than seventy years ago!—is headed, and it recites the news that the races are to come off on "Tuesday the 6th prox." Fifteen yachts, it says, were moored in line off the Long Wharf in New Town, which were to "get under weigh with the sea breeze and run up the bay as far as Gray's Point, tack and beat out to Point Loma, then tack and sail for the starting point."

"Pacific Pioneer Yacht Club"

And on April 10th there appears an account in detail of the "First Annual Regatta of the Pacific Pioneer Yacht Club," giving the names of the yachts and their backers. the names of the ladies and gentlemen actively interested in the success of the affair; and with a literary spirit not quite so manifest as an accompaniment of modern sport, the words of the songs that were composed and sung—by crowds of partisan spectators—in praise of the chief competitors for honors.

The following notable article appeared in the May 1, 1852, "Herald":

"Sailing Directions in San Diego"

(Information in relation to San Diego Bay and its approaches contained in a letter from the superintendent of the coast survey to the secretary of the treasury.)

"Vesels in sight of the coast and approaching San Diego from the north will observe an opening in the hills and the appearance of an inland bay. This is the false port and must be avoided. Immediately north of the false port commences a tableland about 450 feet high and extending southward six or seven miles. The extremity of this tableland is called Point Loma and forms the entrance to the harbor of San Diego.

"Steer right through the kelp, giving Point Loma a berth of one-half mile and in a few minutes you will open Ballast Point, a low beach of single stones, forming a natural breakwater. Then round up gradually until you bring Ballast Point in range with the easternmost house on the Playa and be very careful not to open more of the village, otherwise you will be too far to the east and in danger of getting aground on Zuringa shoal. The breakers show its position. During the summer keep as close to the hills on the port side as your draught of water will allow, as you will then be able to lay on the wind side up to Ballast Point. Steer direct for the Playa and anchor as you please.

"From the perfect shelter it affords from all winds and the depth of its water, San Diego bay is considered next to San Francisco, the best on the coast. That such a large volume of water should have such a small outlet is somewhat remarkable, as is also the very singular natural breakwater, Ballast Point.

The port La Playa is situated on the western shore of the bay about a mile and three-quarters from the entrance. The anchorage is between nine and ten fathoms. The Customs House is placed here and it is also the place the mail steamers stop. An excellent road leads from La Playa to old San Diego, which is a small town of a few adobe houses and unapproachable by water even in boats.

"New San Diego now about a year old is situated on a plain at the base of the hills on the east side of the bay. It consists of American built houses and a large storehouse for the quartermaster's department. The U. S. military depot is established there. The channel runs in a curve from the old to new San Diego.

"Both new San Diego and La Playa are dependent upon the river at old San Diego for their water. Between the above named channel and old San Diego are large flats mostly covered with grass and partly bare at low tide. The most important subject, however, connects with the bay is the effect of the debouchement of the San Diego river bringing with it when high (in rainy season) great quantities of sand directly into the channel.

"It is believed and apparently with reason that unless the course of the river be changed the channel will be ultimately filled which will have the effect I think of not only cutting off communication with the new town but also of destroying the bay entirely as a harbor, for it appears that nothing keeps the bay open but the great amount of water flowing in and out at the narrow entrance, and when the channel is closed the greater part of the bay will be cut off, leaving an insufficient amount to keep the entrance clear. A bar would doubtless form across the mouth and the bay would gradually fill up.

FIREMAN RYAN BAGS THIRTEEN DUCKS FIRST DAY OF SEASON

Just a half-second after the clock struck the quarter-hour past five o'clock, announcing the opening of the 1924 duck hunting season, on last Wednesday morning, BANG went a shotgun sighted by L. E. Ryan, of the O. B. fire department, and down came the first duck for the year at Morena lake. It was a fine specimen of the teal variety. And during the forenoon Fireman Ryan kept adding to his kill until he had bagged thirteen. The total proof of the accuracy of his marksmanship included sprigs, widgeons, teal and a magnificent mallard drake. With a true sportsman's spirit, the thoughtful Mr. Ryan generously shared the trophies of his skill among friends, and ye editor and Katherine gratefully acknowledge the addition of a plump widgeon to their larder from the happy hunter's string.

"LITTLE MOTHER" GOES TO HER REWARD

Mrs. Grace L. Cramer, endearingly known as the "Little Mother" in Des Moines, Iowa, where for many years she had served as superintendent of charities and mission work, passed away at the family residence in Sunset Cliffs, Ocean Beach, on Sept. 29, at the age of 63 years and two months. She is survived by her husband, Frank L. Cramer, and her daughter, Grace A. Cramer. Strenuous devotion to charity and mission work had caused failing health for Mrs. Cramer, who came to Ocean Beach about five years ago for rest and recuperation.

She was a native of Greenfield, Ind. Funeral services were held last Wednesday and cremation took place at Clover Lawn crematory.

ENCOURAGING CONSTRUCTION

Lumber is the one great building material that has made possible "home ownership" for the average American citien.

In order to extend its markets and encourage the building of homes, the lumber industry as a whole has been doing a great deal of constructive work to show builders how to build safe chimneys, flues and fireplaces and how to get the greatest advantages from frame construction as compared with other materials.

Prospective builders can get much valuable information along these lines from local lumber organizations which would be of benefit to them through better methods of construction and help to stabilize the great employing lumber industry as a result of adopting building standards which eliminate fire hazards and encourage the use of our great national building material.

The BROWN MOUSE

"I can't allow you to depart," said Jim more gently than before, "without thanking you for the very excellent talk you gave us on the advantage of the co-operative creamery over the centralizer. We in this school believe in the co-operative creamery, and if we can get rid of you, Mr. Carmichael, without buying your equipment, I think your work here may be productive of good."

"He's off three or four points on the average overrun in the Wisconsin co-ops," said Newton.

"And we thought," said Mary Smith, "that we'd need more cows than he said to keep up a creamery of our own."

"Oh," replied Jim, "but we mustn't expect Mr. Carmichael to know the subject as well as we do, children. He makes a practice of talking mostly to people who know nothing about it—and he talks very well. All in favor of thanking Mr. Carmichael please say 'Aye.'"

CHAPTER XXI

A New Era Dawns.

There was a rousing chorus of "Aye!" in which Mr. Carmichael, followed closely by Mr. Bonner, made his exit. B. B. Hamm went forward and shook Jim's hand slowly and contemplatively, as if trying to remember just what he should say.

"James E. Irwin," said he, "you've saved us from being skinned by the smoothest grafter that I ever seen."

"Not I," said Jim; "the kind of school I stand for, Mr. Hamm, will save you more than that—and give you the broadest culture any school ever gave. A culture based on life. We've been studying life, in this school—the life we all live here in this district."

"He had a smooth partner, too," said Columbus Brown. Jim looked at Bonner's little boy in one of the front seats and shook his head at Columbus warningly.

"If I hadn't herded 'em in here to ask you a few questions about co-operative creameries," said Mr. Talcott, "we'd have been stuck—they pretty near had our names. And then the whole neighborhood would have been sucked in for about fifty dollars a name."

"I'd have gone in for two hundred," said B. B. Hamm.

"May I call a little meeting here for a minute, Jim?" asked Ezra Bronson. "Why, where's he gone?"

"They's some other visitors come in," said a little girl, pulling her apron in embarrassment at the teacher's absence.

Jim had, after what seemed to Jennie an interminable while, seen the county superintendent and her distinguished party, and was now engaged in welcoming them and endeavoring to find them seats—quite an impossible thing at that particular moment, by the way.

"Don't mind us, Mr. Irwin," said Doctor Brathwayt. "This is the best thing we've seen on our journeyings. Please go on with the proceedin's. That gentleman seems to have in mind the perfectin' of some so't of organization. I'm intensely interested."

"I'd like to call a little meetin' here," said Ezra to the teacher. "Seein' we've busted up your program so far, may we take a little while longer?"

"Certainly," said Jim. "The school will please come to order."

The pupils took their seats, straightened their books and papers, and were at attention. Doctor Brathwayt nodded approvingly as if at the answer to some question in his mind.

"Children," said Mr. Irwin, "you may or may not be interested in what these gentlemen are about to do—but I hope you are. Those who wish may be members of Mr. Bronson's meeting. Those who do not prefer to do so may take up their regular work."

"Gentlemen," said Mr. Bronson to the remains of Mr. Carmichael's creamery party, "we've been cutting bait in this neighborhood about long enough. I'm in favor of fishing, now. How many here favor building a co-operative creamery if we can get the farmers in with cows enough to make it profitable, and the equipment at the right price?"

Each man held up a hand.

"Here's one of our best farmers not voting," said Mr. Bronson, indicating Raymond Simms. "How about you, Raymond?"

"Ah reckon paw'll come in," said Raymond blushingly.

"He will if you say so," said Mr. Bronson.

Raymond's hand went up amid a ripple of applause from the pupils, who seemed glad to have a voter in their ranks.

AN APPRECIATION

RIGHTFUL RECOGNITION OF BRILLIANT WRITER

As elsewhere prominently noted in a box news announcement, a class in the "Appreciation of Poetry" will be begun by Winifred Davidson on Monday, October 6, in the clubhouse of the Point Loma Assembly at Roseville. The course is free and consists of ten lectures, held from three to four o'clock on Monday afternoons. Formation of the class is the result of the splendid talk on Edna St. Vincent Millay, recently given by Winifred Davidson at the clubhouse.

The fame of Winifred Davidson as a gifted authoress has gone forth far and high. Her clever contributions of the "Loma Lore" series each week in "The Beach News" has gained her a large and loyal following and she has won a host of admirers for her excellent sonnets published from time to time in the "Poetry Review" of England, "The Lariat" of Portland, "The Argonaut of Los Angeles, "Overland" of San Francisco and other standard periodicals. Some of her choicest poetical productions have been selected by William Stanley Braithwaite to be included in his 1923-24 "Anthology of Magazine Verse."

Besides most ably and graciously filling the position of president of the American Literary Association, Winifred Davidson, has had the honor of being recently requested by the University of California to act as literary judge. In the June issue of the "All-Story Weekly" there is a somewhat thrilling essay entitled "Beefy," from her prolific pen, with quite a dash of lurid local color in the opening and closing chapters.

In all of her writings, prose as well as poetry, Winifred Davidson has the happy faculty of sustaining reader interest, while her flights of fancy bear the delightful stamp of her charmingly cultured personality.

Modern Banking and How it Has Changed From Pre-War Days

VI

THE efforts of the modern banker are all directed to devising means to help and assist his customers, and enable them to get the best returns for any investment they may make, while at the same time insuring the absolute safety of their funds.

We pointed out in a previous article how the Humboldt bank of San Francisco has devised a plan by which patrons of its Trust Department can treble their savings in less than six years by a systematic plan of saving. It was a guarantee at once of safety and a safe return for the money invested.

Another plan is offered its depositors in the Savings Department by which they can secure all the advantages of an ordinary savings account, four per cent interest, right to withdraw a part of the deposit when desired, and yet insure that if they should die the balance of their savings account would go to such heirs as they may designate without any probate, without any red tape or delay. All that is necessary is to prove that you are the designated heir, and that the depositor is dead. On submission of that proof the Humboldt Bank transfers the account to the heir, and there is no delay, no court costs, no will to be disputed. It is only subject to inheritance taxes, which only apply in case of large amounts.

This new system is known as the Trust Funds Savings Account, and the more widely its advantages are known and understood by the general public the more popular it becomes. It is, in brief, an old-fashioned Savings Account, plus the many advantages which we have enumerated above.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

On How Not to Make Out Checks

"The most annoying thing has happened, Aunt Emmy," exclaimed Helen. "I sent a check for $5 to the hospital to help them in their drive and some one cashed it. Isn't it a shame, for I simply can't afford to send another."

"I don't see how that could happen," said Aunt Emmy, "if you made out the check properly."

"Why, of course, I did," Helen said. "I made it out just as I always do, to 'bearer.'"

Aunt Emmy laughed. "No wonder you lost it!" she said. "Any one at all could cash a check made out like that. It's very careless of you to do it, no matter to whom the check is given. It would only take a few seconds to write the name of the payee properly. A check made out to 'Bearer' may be cashed by any one who gets it. It is regrettable but true that not every one is honest. You know that lots of people would take a five dollar bill if they happened to find it. A check made payable to bearer or to 'cash' is just as tempting to them as a five dollar bill would be."

"But, Aunty, it was so frightfully mean to steal from the hospital!"

"You invited this particular theft by neglecting to make your check out properly," Aunt Emmy admonished Helen. "You may be glad your loss is no greater. Even when you go to the bank for money yourself you should not make your check payable to cash. Suppose you should lose it on the way? The same thing that happened to the hospital check might happen to it. Better take an extra minute and make the check out to yourself, sign your name to it as usual and indorse it just as though it were one you received from someone else."

"That seems like a lot of times to sign your own name on one little check, doesn't it, Aunty?" objected Helen.

"It's ever so much better to be on the safe side than to lose your money through carelessness," retorted Aunt Emmy.—Anne B. Aymes.

PUBLIC INTEREST IN RADIO

The value of the radio business is nearly twice as great as that of the carpet and rug business. For every dollar spent on furniture, 33 cents is spent on radio. For every dollar spent on boots and shoes, 25 cents is spent on radio. For every dollar spent on musical instruments—pianos, organs, band and orchestra, phonographs and even the lowly harmonica—75 cents is spent on the radio. The value of the radio business is three-fourths of the jewelry business with its clocks, watches and novelties. Radio is not a fad but a utility.

Possible Deadlock For Presidency

The official counting of the electoral votes is not done until February. The Twelfth amendment to the Constitution provides as follows for the conduct of the congress in case the electoral college makes no choice:

Constitutional Provision.

"And if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers not exceeding three on the list of those voted for as President, the house of representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. And if the house of representatives shall not choose a President whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the vice president shall act as President, as in the case of the death or any constitutional disability of the President.

"The person having the greatest number of votes as vice president, shall be the vice president, if such a number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list, the senate shall choose the vice president; a quorum for the purpose shall consists of two-thirds of the whole number of senators and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice."

Meets in February.

Complying with this provision of the Constitution, when the time comes in February for the Presidential electors to report, and it is discovered that there is no majority choice for President, then the house and senate will begin to ballot. But this official report of the electors does not occur until a month before it is time for the next administration to take office.

From election day, November 4, until some solution of the tangle is found —and the untangling of the knot cannot come before February—the country will be facing the possibility of a deadlock, or the putting of a man into the highest office of the land who was not voted for as President, who was not even selected by his party for President.

If LaFollette could secure enough votes to keep Coolidge from having a majority of the electoral votes, throwing the election of the President into the house, the house and senate would act independently of each other in their votes. That is, the senate does not await the result of the effort of the house to elect a President before proceeding to the selection of the vice president.

Vote Is by States.

As each state, no matter how large its population and its representation in the house, has only one vote, it is obvious that those states having a majority of representatives of one political faith will cast the vote of that state for their party nominee. As there are 48 states, and a majority of all of them is necessary to the selection of a President, a successful aspirant must have the votes of at least 25 states.

It should be emphasized that it is the present house of representatives and the present senate that vote for President and vice president in the event of the election being thrown into the congress. New congressmen and senators elected this fall will have nothing whatever to do with it.

The present house of representatives is so made up that there is little likelihood it can make a choice. Democrats make up a majority of the delegations of 20 states, while 23 state delegations have Republican majorities. In 5 other states the representation is evenly divided, and those states would have no vote to cast. Those states are Maryland, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire and New Jersey.

Some Not Regular.

The 23 states showing a nominal Republican majority might not all vote for Coolidge. There are a few where the Republicanism of some representatives is open to question, and if LaFollette should carry those states, it is not unlikely that their votes in the house would go to LaFollette, despite the Republican label borne by such congressmen. Should any of these states vote for LaFollette, or if the states should vote as they line up on paper—20 Democratic, 23 Republican, and 5 unable to vote, no choice could be made, as 25 states are needed to elect the President.

Attention would then center on the senate. Here the state rule does not apply. Each senator of the 96 has a separate vote. For a quorum, two-thirds of the 96 must be present, or 64, and for a choice of vice president, a bare majority, or 49, is necessary.

However, in the senate only two candidates for vice president having the highest showing in the electoral college may be voted for, and this would narrow the choice down to General Dawes and Governor Bryan.

Present Situation Important.

As the present senate would select, the situation there now is important. There are nominally 51 Republican senators, but this number includes LaFollette of Wisconsin and Brookhart of Iowa, and others who of late have seldom voted with the Republicans. Forty-three senators are listed as Democrats, and two, Ladd and Frazier, are listed as Farmer-Laborites.

If Bryan can hold the 43 Democratic senators in line and get the votes of the two Farmer-Labor senators, this would give him a nucleus of 45 votes. By securing four of the so-called Republicans, such as Brookhart and LaFollette, this majority would put into the White House a man for whom the American people had not voted for President, and who would be a minority choice.

If Bryan could secure only the 43 Democratic senators, the two Farmer-Labor senators, and three such men as LaFollette, the election would be deadlocked, and the country thrown into a state of chaos never before faced. Throwing the election into the congress would of itself have a terrific effect upon business and industry the country over, causing a wave of depression which would affect everyone, as this would cause months of uncertainty before a choice by the congress was attempted. If, on top of this, the senate should get into a deadlock as the house is certain to, the depression might easily became a panic, with terrific and far-reaching results.

Other Possibilities.

There is the outside chance, in the event of Coolidge failing to receive a majority of the electoral votes, that when the matter came to the senate, such Democrats as Glass of Virginia, Bruce of Maryland and Underwood of Alabama would vote for General Dawes, the Republican nominee, rather than put such a man as Bryan in the White House.

A large body of thought in the United States holds to the opinion that the whole purpose of LaFollette is to throw the election into the congress, where he and his followers probably would wield the balance of power, and this small group would name the next President of the United States.

LABOR DAY DEVELOPMENTS

Celebration of Labor Day brought out some vital facts about our country that should inspire citizens with patriotism, optimism and confidence in our political institutions.

It has shown that we lead the world in production because the average citizen works nearer 300 days in the year than in any other country in the world.

The workers draw pay as in wages equal to more than one-half of the entire national income, and more than 60 per cent of that goes to those who get $2,000 apiece or less per annum.

Think of this: Thirteen million Americans have $7,500,000,000 in the savings banks; they hold 72,000,000 insurance policies of all kinds, for $55,000,000,000. About half our population, more than 11,000,000 families, own their own homes and 3,500,000 farmers own two-thirds of the land in use.

SOME PRODUCTION RECORD

It is estimated that it will take 51,000 refrigerator cars operating on passenger schedule to handle the southern California fruit crop this year, an increase of 24 per cent over last year and worth $75,000,000,
